HUMAN ANSWER RECEIVED BY PRESIDENT

GERMANY'S REPLY TO PRESIDENT WILSON RECEIVED BY STATE DEPARTMENT THIS AFTERNOON.

CAUTION COMMANDERS

Note Claims That Submarine Commanders Have Been Notified To Conform As Near As Possible With Rules of War.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Oct. 21.—The German reply to President Wilson's note, the text of which was received here today by wireless says Germany hopes the United States will approve of no demands which would be irreconcilable with the honor of the German people and with the opening to the way to a peace of justice.

Germany's protests against the reference of President Wilson to illegal and inhuman acts, Denzil is made the German navy purposely destroyed life boats with passengers. The German government proposes the facts to be cleared up by neutral commission.

Germany has dispatched orders to submarine commanders precluding the torpedoing of passenger ships. The German government suggests to President Wilson an opportunity to be brought about for fixing the details and evacuation of occupied territory. An announcement is made of fundamental change in the German constitution providing for a representation of the people in the decision concerning peace and war and it is said that the present government has been formed in complete accordance therewith.

London, 2:55 p. m., Oct. 21.—The German answer to the American note has been received in London by wireless and will be issued shortly.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Secretary Lansing said today he had reason to believe the German reply to President Wilson would be received shortly perhaps before the day was over. The secretary did not indicate what information had reached him to clear up the uncertainty regarding the coming of a German reply created by conflicting unofficial reply through neutral countries. He said of course there could be no comment on the various versions of the probable nature of the note.

Conflicting Reports. There has been so many conflicting reports that even informal conversations officials are guarded in their comments. They are waiting to see the text of the note and in the meantime are not inclined to spend much to speculate whether concession the Germans are said to have determined will meet conditions which must be met to permit further conversation on the subject of peace. At the Swiss legation through which the note will be said this morning not even an inclination had been received that communication would be made.

Agree To Commission. Germany, according to information received here, has asked a neutral government to inform President Wilson that Germany is prepared to accept a neutral commission to investigate charges of devastation.

Wireless Version. Washington.—A wireless version of the German reply to President Wilson has been received today. It was the first official comment on the official text is received. Consultation in progress between party leaders in Germany have the most far-reaching consequences according to sources in Europe. These confidential reports say the German mid-level classes are taking control. Demands to have peace even if it involves complete acceptance of the terms, including the downfall of the Kaiser and Crown Prince and fully independent and the entire military control.

Fear Uprising. It is not possible to give details but reports here are expected to credit the report as they are supported by knowledge from other sources that German business interests and landed proprietors who heretofore have been regarded as the backbone of the German nation are now turning their backs on the German government and are turning to the United States for support.

WILL HOLD MEETING IN MADISON NEXT MONTH

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Madison, Wis., Oct. 21.—The tricky and duplicity of the German government will be aired at the big Wisconsin convention of the University of Wisconsin, which will open here Nov. 3 with 1,500 delegates present from all parts of the country.

The call for the three-day meeting under the auspices of the University of Wisconsin says the chief object is to "confirm opposition to a premature peace, to sustain the determination of the Wisconsin people to fight until the American people are satisfied that the American people seek to gain from the war.

William H. Taft, former president, is at the head of the league, and will preside at the sessions and deliver two addresses, one to the delegates and the other to the 4,000 student army training corps soldiers at the university.

Others who have tentatively accepted invitations to speak are Lord Reading, British ambassador; Franz Siegel, president of the Friends of German Democracy; Hamilton Holt, editor of the Independent; Charles E. Hughes, secretary of the League of Nations; and a number of other prominent figures.

The Wisconsin legislature has authorized the convention and pledged all support necessary to ensure its success.

London, Oct. 21.—Scenes of happiness at Bruges eclipsed those of Lille after the liberation of those two cities. The city of Bruges was the scene of a woman left in Bruges was told of the deeds of Americans in France.

On Oct. 17 I had only known that "Bruges was fined enormous sums on various occasions," the correspondent says. "Everything of metal taken away."

The city was searched four times for copper. The works at Bruges were robbed of scrap of machinery. The Germans paid for nothing except food and drink and then only in paper money. The town itself is intact

Poor Woman Makes Sacrifice

"For years I have suffered from indigestion and severe bloating with gas, all my money had gone for doctors and medicine which did me no good. I had lost all faith in medicines and as I have to work hard for the few dollars I earn, was afraid to risk any more money. A year ago my neighbor told me to try May's Wonderful Remedy. I have found it to be the best medicine in the world and am glad I made the sacrifice." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the harmful mucus from the intestinal tract and cures the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including constipation. One dose will convince or money refunded. J. P. Baker, Druggist.

OVER FOUR HUNDRED CASES OF INFLUENZA

DOCTOR BUCKMASTER, CITY HEALTH OFFICER, REPORTS THAT EPIDEMIC HAS REACHED ITS HEIGHT IN JANESVILLE.

MUST AVOID CROWDS

Urges Citizens to Avoid Crowding in Public Places and on Street. May Lift Quarantine Next Monday.

Over four hundred cases of Spanish influenza have been reported to the Health Officer up to the present time. In discussing the situation in Janesville, Doctor Buckmaster stated that although there are many cases here, it is evident that the epidemic has run its course and that there will be no new outbreak.

People are warned to avoid gathering in public places or on the streets. They are also requested to cover their nose and mouth and to do all they possibly can to safeguard themselves against the disease.

Dr. S. B. Buckmaster, local health officer, emphasizes the necessity of religiously avoiding public gatherings and all group meetings in a statement this morning. His statement follows:

"Janesville is very fortunate in having but comparatively few cases of Spanish influenza, compared to other cities. Deaths, too, have been numerically small. It is gratifying to have been accorded the co-operation which I have had since the epidemic became effective. We are fortunate, too, in having no other form of contagious diseases. Each day new cases develop, but indications are that the worst of the epidemic has been reached, but that there be no new outbreak the order for keeping all public places closed will continue."

The total number of cases now in the city is more than 400. Public gatherings are forbidden and persons must, if they would, avoid congregating in groups. Strict adherence to the order will protect our people and preclude another outbreak.

The Chamber of Commerce is co-operating with Dr. Buckmaster in his effort to stamp out the disease. Dr. Buckmaster, who has been a victim of the disease, is improving, but still is confined to his home.

Evansville News

Arlene Lois Holden, Evansville, Oct. 21.—Saturday evening at eight o'clock the Death Angel entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Holden in the town of Center taking their eldest child, Arlene Lois, to the land of rest. She had been ill about ten days with the Spanish influenza, which culminated in pneumonia, causing her death. She was a sweet, lovable child who had endeavored herself to all who knew her—a veritable little mother to her young sisters and brother, and all that a good child could be to her mother and mother. In the last few days of her illness, she would have been twelve years of age. To the grief-stricken parents, two sisters and a brother, and other relatives, loving sympathy is extended. The funeral will be held from the home Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. Interment in Maple Hill cemetery.

She was about twenty-five years of age, having been born in 1893. She is survived by her husband, who is with the colors "somewhere in France," her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Reese, and a brother, Kenneth Reese. William Reese and Madeline Reese, Charles Reese and Ed. Smith of this city are an uncle and aunt of the deceased. The body will be brought to Evansville Sunday for interment in Maple Hill cemetery.

USUAL MONDAY MORNING CROWD GREETED JUDGE

Nine Drunks From Different Sections of State Appear Before Judge Maxfield in Municipal Court.

Moving picture directors could have secured a great amount of talent for mob scenes this morning should one have strolled into the municipal court room. They were there, nine of them from all parts of southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois and they were all looking for a fight. Nine men all waiting to answer charges of drunkenness and not one of them from the city of Janesville.

Despite everything that can be done to keep the coming to Janesville over the week end and getting drunk, it also seems that they are new every Monday and some of the store-keepers tell us more amusing than a good fellow.

Albert Guter was the first one this morning and he was handed twenty dollars and costs. He wore a blue pin which designated him as a member of the Deutscher Krugger Verein. He found no sympathy from any of the court attaches.

From the city of Rockford drew a line of twenty-dollar and costs when he pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness. Christ Beath of Edgerton and Charles Smith of Beloit both were assessed twenty dollars and costs on their plea of guilty to the charge of drunkenness.

FIFTY-SIX TEACHERS WILL RECEIVE BONUS

As a reward for remaining in their schools for a two year period or over, fifty-six teachers of the city will this year receive a bonus from the state. The state law provides that a teacher who remains in her school for two years will receive a bonus of two dollars a month, making eighteen dollars for the nine months school year. A teacher who remains for three years will receive a bonus of four dollars per month or thirty-six dollars per year. One who remains for a four year period will get eight dollars extra a month or seventy-two dollars per year.

Fifty-six one room school teachers in Rock County are eligible for this bonus and forms to be filled out by them were sent out on Tuesday by Superintendent Antisdel's office Saturday. This bonus encourages good work on the teachers' part and encourages them to remain in the school after a short period.

Notice to Gazette Mail Subscribers!

The government's orders through the War Industries Board are to discontinue all mail subscriptions at expiration unless they are renewed and paid for in advance.

Most Gazette readers are assisting splendidly in helping to comply with this ruling and are sending in their renewals promptly.

The name tag on your paper gives the expiration date of your subscription and if it does not conform to the date as you have it, send word giving date of expiration.

A notification of subscription expiration is also attached to a copy of your paper two weeks before the date, and still another goes a few days before last date.

The safest, most satisfactory way is to send your money a week or so ahead to avoid any break in delivery of your paper.

Our rates for delivery by mail are $4.00 per year. Other mail territory, $6.00 per year.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Oct. 21.—Edgerton goes over the top on the fourth Liberty loan in grand style. On Saturday noon the whistles and bells in the city announce that we were over the top, and when the final count had been made at the banks it was found that Edgerton and district had over subscribed $73,000. The quota for the district was $250,000 and the total amount subscribed was $323,000. The manner in which the sale of bonds was handled and in which every one purchased their share, puts Edgerton and community in the front rank. Some of the lieutenants recorded a 100 per cent sale within two days after the sale of bonds began, while others were longer in making their report. The bonds were sold on the "Your Share Is Fair" plan and every one was able to determine the amount of their share. The sale was over a great many bought bonds far in excess of what their share amounted to, which gives this district an excellent showing.

They stared at him. He was still weighing the papers and smiling rather wryly. He was thinking of Sylvia at that moment, and Preston's stricken expression sounded dull and far off.

"You! What do you mean, Farquhar? I don't believe it. It's impossible. Say you didn't—didn't sell them, Farquhar?"

"Captain Armand will explain," was the answer.

Armand rose slowly to his feet. He was staring across the table into Farquhar's face, stupidly, incredulously, and when he spoke it was in the monotone of a man under a hypnotic command.

"They were offered to me," he said. "Farquhar offered them to me. I declined, for I am a good Frenchman, and the temptation was too great. I bought them. I can only add that I regret it." He stammered and broke off with a real helplessness.

Farquhar smiled from him to Sower. The latter's features had assumed a mask of brutal acceptance.

"In that case there is no more to be said," he observed coolly. "We can now credit Mr. Farquhar's statement." Farquhar bowed.

"Thank you," he said simply.

Preston crossed the room and hung open the door with a cool deliberation. "Good-bye, Farquhar. I hope you have deemed enough left to know what to do."

For a short space which seemed an eternity Farquhar hesitated. The scene and the scene in the boy's eyes had stung him. An hour ago he had been half a hero, and now was nothing, beneath even contempt. Then he, too, bowed.

"I resigned my commission this morning."

"God be thanked for that."

He went down the narrow stairs into the street. Someone touched him on the arm. He turned and saw Armand—a new Armand, grown calm, almost indifferent. He was smoking, and the faint reflection from his eyes lighted up the white complexion of his features.

"I want to speak to you for a moment," he said. "I want to ask you—why you did that?" Farquhar made no answer, and he went on deliberately. "You are not mad. You do not love me. You have good reason to hate me."

"You are to be Miss Omeley's husband. My feelings toward her have not changed. I considered in my business as a doctor, that the sacrifice was not as great as it may seem. I had lost practically everything before. What remained I chose to lose in my own way."

"It wasn't all for myself. I was pretty desperate and not so cool when I came with his second offer. You can guess what that was. Compared to betraying one's own country it seemed almost business. And I let you hear the truth. How does that strike you?"

"But the instinct of self-preservation, I counted on it. The future will be different."

"How do you mean?"

Farquhar turned round and faced him with deliberate significance.

"It must be," he said. "As for me, I am done for. Though no one will speak of what has happened, the fact remains. My country believes in you and so do I—so to speak. I am an authority in sympathy with you to credit the sincerity of your feelings. Am I justified?"

Armand met his eyes full.

"You are."

"Well, that is what I believe. I hold you in pawn, Captain Armand, for your wife's happiness. If you fail her, if

CHAPTER V.

Colonel Destin of the Legion.

A thin-voiced chime from some tower in Still-hel-Abbes announced the hour—four o'clock.

Colonel Destin looked up. From where he sat he could see the barracks, and beyond, the great stretch of other plain rolling to the horizon. A little to the right an Arab mosque lifted its white minarets against the sky, which hung oppressively over the panting, lifeless country.

In the narrow, meanly furnished room the atmosphere was stifling. Colonel Destin's guest drew back into the thin patch of shadow. Colonel Destin himself smiled, and the thin lips under the iron-gray mustache became indeliberately ruthless.

"Yes, you are quite right, Mr. Lowe," he was saying in his suave French. "I have something to sell—something quite valuable, in fact. But I do not choose to sell it to you, that is all."

Stephen Lowe glanced up. His deformity was very obvious at that moment. He looked old, and physical exhaustion had stamped out the last trace of beauty from his thin features.

"Why not?" he asked.

"Is not that my affair?"

Colonel Destin brushed a spark of dust from his dolman. His slate-gray eyes flashed. He rose, and Lowe had no choice but to rise also.

BEWARE OF FILTERS

"But remember," the author man reminded me, "What she says of him is filtered through her prejudice against him."

A friend of ours had been telling us what a certain man said when he was discussing his relations to the war, with her.

He had claimed exemption and won it, though it might seem to an outsider as if he could very easily have been called up. But, some day I want to talk over with you the question of the outsider's right to criticize in such cases, and she was telling what he said about it.

"I'm just beginning to make good money," she had quoted him as saying, "and I hate to give it up."

That was the only sentence she gave of his explanation. And I have heard her repeat it to several people.

It did sound pretty rotten, didn't it, and I was ready to utterly condemn him, when the same friend told me that she had said:

"He probably said a good many other things," he went on, "that bore on the situation. And he may have qualified that remark. But, you know, like him, as you very well know, and she picks out that one remark and makes him sound like a rotter with it. I know him pretty well myself, and he seems like a decent sort of fellow to me. I'm not willing to condemn him on that alone."

And when I stopped to think of it, neither was he.

When Even Truthful People Lie

After all, one needs to be pretty careful of all reports that come filtered through prejudices, doesn't one? To me, the woman in question is truthful, she wouldn't tell a deliberate lie, but she might tell one of those subconscious lies that consist in filtering things through our prejudices and retaining in the filter only a single harmful sentence or two out of the whole conversation.

Everyone knows how much the meaning of a sentence can be changed, if it is taken out of its context and repeated in a different setting, in a different tone of voice or a different accent from that in which it was said.

Arrogance For Either Good or Ill

Deciding

But not everyone remembers to consider that in accepting quotations from other people.

Excuse me, whether for good or ill is a very delicate filter. It takes so much out and is so apt to color what is left.

So beware of filters.

THE STRUGGLE

THE GREAT SUBMERGED

It was a temper, a wistful, involuntary discontent with the monotony of the struggle ahead of them—a struggle not sharp enough to be dramatic yet depressing enough to be unremitting sadness. Always the same $35 salary. And now not even the $35 he had formerly cleared on commissions. Always the same future, or rather, the same dreary, unvarying family expense. Life seemed to hold out no relief from the everlasting treadmill of penury.

Edith was the first to get the best of her. Putting her arms about her man, she snuggled her face against his.

"Well, Jackie Longface, suppose we have a little together, you and me," she said quizzically. "Maybe we'll light up the road ahead a little better than gloom does."

John patted her absently.

"You're right, Chick," he said slowly. "But the best way of lightening the future is to think of it, I think. Do you mind if I do a little thinking aloud with you as audience?"

"I do mind, John, if I'm to be only audience."

"Well, dear, it's mostly my problem. I don't want to burden you with business. That's a man's job."

Edith came around to the front of him, sat down on his knees and shook him by the shoulders.

"John Ferrol, I'm going to shake the old superstition out of you that a woman's place is her home and not business. Anything that touches on her home is her domain—and surely her husband's business touches it. So if you're wise you'll take us into partnership with you!"

John thought a while.

"Again you're right, Chick!" he said. "Get what a lot of unemployed business sense a man can find in his wife. Only most of us don't take advantage of it."

"Well, now you are talking sense," remarked Edith patronizingly.

"Now, the business under consideration is—er—what?"

"Well, it is the problem of how to get out of our little money rut. For, dear, we are in one—all of the millions of us who work for a steady salary. We think we're going to have our heads a little higher above the water with each raise. Then up comes the cost of living a little higher, too. And we're in just as deep water as before. Any little thing that comes along, like a storm just submerges us. Now what to do, little partner, eh?"

"Well, I've done it. Millions like me have done it. The tide rises right after us just steadily. No, Chick, it's got to be a spur of some sort. Now, I've tried spurring with stocks. And you know what that brought us—loss!"

"But you know nothing about stocks," Edith defended him. "Now if you were to spur along in the line you do know about—er—what?"

"You mean get another job?" he asked absently. "One is like another. I've tried that, too."

"No, I mean go into business for yourself—on a small scale. One idea had popped into Edith's mind of itself. She simply spoke it that she might hearten John with some sort of definite reply.

"With the few dollars you have laid aside for a rainy day?" he asked.

"Yes!" she said firmly, as though it took courage to say it.

After husband kissed her.

"There's a true little partner!" he said proudly. "The one thing I had wanted to propose and didn't dare. It would have come with bad grace from me. But now—here's to Ferrol publishers, capitalists at one rainy-day fund—and heaven help us!"

PARICAL EXAMINATION OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Describing methods and results of the medical inspection of school children as required by law in New York State, Dr. G. M. Retan, school medical inspector in the village of Solway, mentions that among 1,450 children thus examined by the school doctor fourteen were found with pulmonary tuberculosis. In no such case had the parents any suspicion of the child's condition.

If medical inspection everywhere could accomplish as much it would be well worth the price. To cure tuberculosis you must diagnose it early. If you can detect the disease in the lung before the victim's health is greatly impaired a cure is almost assured. That is the highest kind of prophylaxis. Remember that the parents of these fourteen fortunate children had no suspicion that their children were in the early stage of consumption.

The saving to the community, by the detection of these fourteen cases of tuberculosis in their incipency when the patients were mostly incapable of infecting other children (though tubercle bacilli were found in the sputum of three of the fourteen children) cannot be estimated in dollars. It was a saving of many thousands of dollars. So, even though medical inspection of school children included nothing else than an examination of the chest it would be a valuable investment for the people.

In Solway the medical inspection appears to be a capable and careful man. He says, "Of course, there is no object in making an examination of the child's lungs with the child partly undressed. In any manner of confounding sounds are elicited by the rubbing of the stethoscope on the clothing, and again by the rubbing of the clothing on the chest wall."

Through a questionnaire Dr. Retan learned that it was the rule in only fifteen of the seventy-eight school districts of the State to examine the child stripped to the waist. In other words, the great majority of medical inspections in the public schools of New York state are farcical examinations, and a casual examination of the official form or blank provided by the school authorities strongly suggests that farcical was the adjective they had in mind when they instituted the system of physical inspection.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Hiding for Treacherous Stones

Will please tell me if operation is the only cure for gallstones? Is there any virtue in taking large doses of olive oil or other oils? (Mrs. W. A.)

Answer—Operation is the only cure. A large dose of olive or other neutral oil acts as a laxative, and part of the oil is saponified in the intestine, the soap-like masses being often mistaken for "gallstones." Occasionally a large dose of any vegetable oil seems to give temporary relief to pain, but it from gallstones or other trouble. Anyone acquainted with anatomy realizes how futile it would be to expect olive oil to cure such a disease as gallstones.

Iodine and Goitre

Some time ago you stated that the addition of minute quantities of iodine to the drinking water had prevented goitre and cured slight cases in school children in a Great Lakes Basin. Please tell me how much iodine should be put in the water. (M. K.)

Answer—In the same article I stated that the amount of iodine was a question for the physician on the spot to determine and supervise throughout the treatment. Any kind of sea food, including fresh sea fish, fresh or canned lobster, clams, oysters, shrimp, etc., contains organic iodine, and should be an important part of the diet of persons inclined to have simple goitre. Sea weed contains iodine (iodine of commerce is obtained from sea weed).

All Choked Up With Catarrh?

Why Continue Makeshift Treatment? Sprays and douches will never cure you.

Catarrh is annoying enough when it chokes up your nostrils and air passages, causing pain and difficulty breathing and other discomforts. But the real danger comes when it reaches down into your lungs.

This is why you should at once realize the importance of the proper treatment, and lose no time experimenting with worthless remedies which touch only the surface. To be rid of Catarrh, you must reach the disease germs out of your blood. Splendid results have been reached from the use of S. S. S. S. S. is sold by all druggists. If you wish medical advice as to the treatment of your own individual case, write to-day to Chief Medical Adviser, Swift Specific Co., Dept. B, Atlanta, Ga.

The difference in flavor between green tomatoes and the ripe fruit and the surprising number of dishes in which they may be used, almost adds another edible to the cook's list. SPANISH INFLUENZA--NEW NAME FOR AN OLD FAMILIAR DISEASE

Simply the Same Old Grip That Has Swept Over the World Time and Again. The Last Epidemic in the United States Was in 1889-90.

ORIGIN OF THE DISEASE.

Spanish Influenza, which appeared in Spain in May, has swept over the world in numerous epidemics as far back as history runs. Hippocrates refers to an epidemic in 412 B. C., which is regarded by many to have been influenza. Every century has had its attacks. Beginning with 1821, this country has had five epidemics, the last in 1889-90.

THE SYMPTOMS.

Grip, or influenza as it is now called, usually begins with a chill followed by aching, feverishness and sometimes nausea and dizziness, and a general feeling of weakness and depression. The temperature is from 100 to 104, and the fever usually lasts from three to five days. The germs attack the mucous membrane, or lining of the air passages—nose, throat and bronchial tubes—there is usually a hard cough, especially bad at night, often times a sore throat or tonsillitis, and frequently all the appearances of a severe cold.

THE TREATMENT.

Go to bed at the first symptoms—take a purgative, eat plenty of nourishing food, remain perfectly quiet and don't worry. Nature herself is the only "cure" for influenza and will throw off the attack if only you conserve your strength. A little Quinine, Aspirin or Dover's Powder may be given by the physician's directions to allay the aching. Always call a doctor, since the chief danger of grip is in its weakening effect on the system, which allows complications to develop. These are chiefly pneumonia and bronchitis, sometimes inflammation of the middle ear, or heart affections. For these reasons, it is very important that the patient remain in bed until his strength returns—stay in bed at least two days or more after the fever has left you, or if you are over 50 or not strong, stay in bed four days or more, according to the severity of the attack.

EXTERNAL APPLICATIONS.

In order to stimulate the lining of the air passages to throw off the grippe germs, to aid in loosening the phlegm and keeping the air passages open, thus making the breathing easier, Vick's VapoRub will be found effective. Hot, wet towels should be applied over the throat, chest and back between the shoulder blades to open the pores. Then VapoRub should be rubbed in over the parts until the skin is red, spread on thickly and covered with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck as the heat of the body liberates the ingredients in the form of vapors. These vapors, inhaled with each breath, carry the medication directly to the parts affected. At the same time, VapoRub is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, attracting the blood to the surface and thus aids in relieving the congestion within.

NO OCCASION FOR PANIC.

There is no occasion for panic—flu, or grip, is a very low power, percentage of fatalities not over one death out of every four hundred cases, according to the N. A. Board of Health. The chief danger lies in complications arising, attacking principally patients in a run down condition—those who don't go to bed soon enough, or those who get up too early.

HOW TO AVOID THE DISEASE.

Evidence seems to indicate that influenza is a germ disease, spread principally by human contact, chiefly through coughing, sneezing or spitting. So avoid persons having colds, who means avoiding crowds, common drinking cups, roller towels, etc. Keep up your bodily strength by plenty of exercise in the open air, and good food.

KEEP FREE FROM COLDS.

Above all, avoid colds as colds invite the lining of the air passages to render them much better breeding places for the germs.

Use Vick's VapoRub at the very first sign of a cold. For a head cold, melt a little VapoRub in a spoon and inhale the vapors, or better still, use VapoRub in a benzoin steam kettle. If this is not available, use an ordinary teakettle. Fill half-full of water, put in a half-ounce of VapoRub from time to time. Keep the kettle just slowly boiling and inhale the steam arising.

NOTE—Vick's VapoRub is the discovery of a North Carolina druggist, who found how to combine, in salve form, Menthol and Camphor with such volatile oils as Eucalyptus, Thyme, Cubeb, etc., so that when the salve is applied to the body heat, these ingredients are liberated in the form of vapors. VapoRub can be had in three sizes at all druggists. While the North is the standard home remedy in the South and West for all forms of cold troubles—over six million jars were sold last year, VapoRub is particularly recommended for children's croup or colds, as it is externally applied and can, therefore, be used freely and often without the slightest harmful effects.
